

Anthropology Week

October 22-29

Anthropology Week celebrates several events, most of which are sponsored by the Anthropology Department and Anthropology Student Club at Grand Valley. Whether it's Movie Night or a distinguished speaker on cultural resource management, a local event for National Archaeology Day or an Open House for faculty, staff, and students interested in anthropology - there is something for you!

- Monday, October 24 - Movie night in the Anthropology lab! We are watching "Gods Must Be Crazy" starting at 7pm. Pizza served!
- Tuesday, October 25 - Professor Schwartz demonstrate experimental archaeology. Students will design clay bowls, learn how to flint knap, and (weather permitting) throwing atlatls. 6 pm Room 253 LMH.
- Wednesday, October 26 - At 5:30 pm in the Anthropology Lab, student will celebrate the Day of the Dead! Learn about this holiday and make masks and colorful paper flowers!
- Thursday, October 27 - Distinguished Alumni-in-Residence Lecture, Troy M. Schindlbeck, 4-5 p.m., 253 LMH. Title: "Tools for Managing Our Planet's Cultural Resources." Anthropology and other interested students are welcome.
- Thursday, October 27 - Speaker Reception and Anthropology Open House, following the lecture, come meet Mr. Schindlbeck, as well as faculty, staff and students. 5-6 p.m., 249 LMH. Food and beverages served. Sponsored by the Anthropology Club. Anthropology and other interested students are welcome.
- Friday, October 28 - Student Brown Bag: The Anthropology Club will be hosting a "brown bag" lunch in the Lab from 12-1pm. Students are encouraged to come and speak about their field experience, study abroad, and/or summer research. 12 - 1 p.m.

If you have any questions for the events sponsored by the Anthropology Club, please feel free to ask them by contacting Haley Scott scottha@mail.gvsu.edu or Kevin Gurski gurskik@mail.gvsu.edu

- Saturday, October 29 - Homecoming Expo: Join anthropology faculty at the Mindgating event prior to the football game. Both the Anthropology Department and the Archaeology program will have "spooky" cultural exhibits for students, families and tailgaters in general. Come meet Professors Madden, Morison, Reed, Rhoads, Schwartz and Vannier. 4-6 p.m. Basketball courts, north of the Kelly Family Sports Center.

For more information, contact Russell Rhoads at the Anthropology Department, rhoadsr@gvsu.edu