Study Abroad in Cape Coast, Ghana
June 12-July 12, 2013

Literature of the Slave Trade

ENG 231 Early African American Literature (3 credits)
ENG 334 Multicultural Children’s Literature (3 credits)

Following in the tradition of excellence, the English department offers you an exciting program to Cape Coast Ghana. Students will get to know their faculty directors and peers at orientations before leaving the US, where they prepare for total immersion in Ghanaian culture. Based in the University of Cape Coast, students will expand their knowledge both in the classroom as well as beyond where they will experience aspects of traditional Ghanaian life. With warm, yet strong and vibrant people, it won’t be long before students see why this nation became the first colony to gain independence from Britain in 1957.

Students will...
- Earn 6 English credits in 4 weeks!
- Learn stories of slavery to help choose appropriate texts for elementary and adolescent children
- Tour World Heritage Sites such as the Cape Coast Slave Castle
- Work with students (elementary and/or adolescent) in Ghanaian schools enjoy a taste of Ghana: beaches, rainforests, traditional West African drumming and dance, local open-air markets, new Ghanaian friends

Who should consider this study abroad?
- English majors in all three emphasis-areas
- History majors who want to deepen their knowledge of the trans-Atlantic slave trade
- Any major who plans to teach k-12
- African American Studies minors
- Lib Studies majors

Total Cost: $8,302* cost subject to change based on international airfare costs
Application Deadline: February 1, 2013

Faculty Advisors:
Dr. Amy Masko
221 Lake Huron Hall
maskoa@gvsu.edu

Dr. Sherry Johnson
248 Lake Huron Hall
johnsshe@gvsu.edu