and to meet the requirements stated in the faculty handbook, we will orient you with resources and tools to begin your planning process with a foundation of quality standards. Offered throughout the year in different formats. Register at http://www.gvsu.edu/seminar/.

*Participation in all components of the series is required.

Diving Deep in Community Engagement: A Model for Community Service-Learning Professional Development will be an engaging conversation for current and future civic engagement practitioners, practitioner-scholars, and those who support their work. Participants will learn about a new publication of Iowa Campus Compact guiding professional development and career advancement for professionals focused on civic engagement. This new resource, available this summer, is based on the experience of participants in Campus Compact’s Diving Deep Institute for Experienced Civic and Community Engagement Practitioners.

The webinar will review four categories, as outlined in the publication: Organizational Manager, Institutional Strategic Leader, Field Contributor, and Community Innovator. Presenters who helped to develop the framework and publication will reflect on their experiences and attendees will learn how to utilize this framework in order to think about and plan for their own professional development and the position of their work in the institution and community.

Presenters will include:
• Mandy McReynolds, Director of Community Engagement and Service-Learning, Drake University;
• Emily Shields, Executive Director, Iowa Campus Compact;
• Amanda Wittman, Director of Academic and Strategic Initiatives, Campus Compact

To register, please visit the Seminar Registration site, under the Teaching & Learning category.
