The Niagara Movement: The Legacy of the American Civil Rights 100 Years Later

Date: Thursday, February 2, 2006

Time: 11:00 a.m.

Location: 250 Kirkhof Center, Grand River Room (Allendale)

The Niagara Movement was the precursor to the American Civil Rights Movement of the 1950s and 60s. This small movement led by the American intellectual W. E. B. DuBois became the stepping stone to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in 1909. Learn how and why this movement began. What was its political philosophy? What were its strengths? What were its limitations? What are its lessons for today?

Professor Randal Maurice Jelks from Calvin College's Department of History will lead this discussion. Professor Jelks is also author of the forthcoming African Americans in the Furniture City: The Struggle for Civil Rights in Grand Rapids (March 2006 University of Illinois Press).
