

SHELL SHOCK

in World War I

AND ITS LEGACY TODAY

GVSU Professor Jason Crouthamel

Thursday, November 9 at 7:00 pm

“Shell Shock” in World War I and its Legacy Today

Thursday, November 9, 2017 – 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Grand Valley State University professor Jason Crouthamel will discuss how “shell shock” was diagnosed during and after World War I, as well as the World War II diagnosis of “combat fatigue,” the recognition of PTSD in Vietnam veterans and the ongoing treatment and recovery issues for veterans of the Iraq and Afghanistan theatres.