

About

Dr. Tonisha R. Jones (Dr. Jones) completed her undergraduate degree at Washington State University earning a B.A. in Criminal Justice. She then completed her graduate degree at Washington State University earning both her M.A. and Ph.D. in criminal Justice.

Dr. Jones has taught as an adjunct professor at the University of Idaho and an instructor for Washington State University.

Courses Taught

Dr. Jones has taught courses in policing, corrections, juvenile justice, public administration, multicultural issues in the criminal justice system, and social justice. Dr. Jones currently teaches:

CJ 101 Justice and Society

CJ 201 Criminology

CJ 350 Juvenile Justice Process

CJ 482 Culture, Crime and Justice

Research Interests

Dr. Jones areas of research interest are in Juvenile Justice, Race, Class, Gender and Justice, and Social Justice, specifically Human Trafficking.

Publications

Dr. Jones' work has appeared in Policing: an International Journal of Police Strategies and Management and International Journal of Offender Therapy and Comparative Criminology.

Her current research is forthcoming in the Journal of Human Trafficking and The Encyclopedia of Juvenile Delinquency and Justice.

In addition, Dr. Jones' community-based research project titled "Kent County Sexual Violence Program and Resource Needs Assessment" was released July 2015.