

Register NOW!

ANT 345-02 “Perspectives on Globalization”

Winter 2017

A HYBRID section is now added to Banner for student registration. This hybrid on-line course meets 9 times on Wednesdays, 2-2:50 in LMH 275.

The meetings dates are posted on Banner.

Course Description

The anthropology of globalization examines the emergence of “globalized local cultures.” Students employ the ethnographic approach to understand globalization as the intensification of interconnectedness, in which anthropologists learn that fundamental problems of deep and universal concern to humans everywhere will need to be addressed at local, national, and global levels. Offered fall semester of even-numbered years. Fulfills Cultures - World Perspectives. Part of the Globalization Issue. Prerequisite: Junior standing.

This course meets anthropology degree requirements, and satisfies General Education as an Issues Course and for World Perspectives.

Contact: Russell Rhoads,
rhoadsr@gvsu.edu