The Autism Awareness Ribbon Story

The puzzle pattern of this ribbon reflects the mystery and complexity of Autism Spectrum Disorder. The different colors and shapes represent the diversity of people and families living with disorder. The brightness of the ribbon signals hope – hope through research and increasing awareness in people like you.

Autism Spectrum Disorder

Autism Spectrum Disorder is a disability that is neurologically based. It affects the areas of communication, academic achievement, behavior management and socialization.

The LINKS Program

Pinckney High School is looking for students to participate in the LINKS program. The LINKS program was created to help students with disabilities understand typical social and communicative behavior of high school students, using same-aged peers as models. The program has been established in many school districts and has been extremely successful. The LINKS staff relies on the general and special education students to make this program successful. Supervision and training is provided to the students. Students will engage in enrichment and academic activities with the LINKS students. LINKS students receive $\frac{1}{2}$ elective credit after successfully completing a semester of participation as a LINK.
