4 PLAYERS,
3 SPOONS

SPOONS

Game Rules

- Everyone sits around a table or in a circle on the ground.
- Dealer shuffles the cards and deals out four cards to each player. Dealer keeps the remaining cards in a draw pile to her right.
- Set the spoons (one fewer spoons than there are players) in the center of the table or circle.
- The dealer picks up one card from the pile to her right. She quickly adds the card to her hand and then discards one of her cards to the left, where the next person picks it up.
- The goal is to get four of a kind in your hand, so the dealer quickly decides as she picks up each new card whether to keep it (if it matches a card she already has) or discard it. If she keeps the card she picked up, she discards another card to her left, so she is always holding four cards.
- The person next to the dealer picks up the card the dealer discarded, and then discards one of his cards to the left.
- Play continues around in a circle, with everyone picking up one card from the right (where another player has discarded it) and discarding one card to the left (where the next player can pick it up).
- As soon as someone gets four of a kind in their hand, they grab one of the spoons from the center.
- When one spoon is grabbed, all the other players also try to grab one of the remaining spoons.
- Whoever does not get a spoon earns a letter in the word "spoons": first "S", then "P", etc. Someone earns a letter each round. Players are out of the game once they have spelled "spoons" and the winner is the one still in.
