

Ethical Dilemmas in School Social Work: “Can I do that?” “Can I say that?”

This course will provide an interactive experience to aid participants in identifying and processing social, legal, and ethical dilemmas in the areas of technology, relationships, and policy within the school setting. Participants will practice applying a unique ethical framework for various ethically challenging cases to foster responsible school social work practices.

This program meets the ethics requirement for license renewal.

Dr. Glenda Bailey Hayden is a graduate of Dillard University, Michigan State University, and Grand Valley State University. She is a School Social Worker with Grand Rapids Public Schools. Currently, she serves as the Lead School Social Worker in which she coordinates professional development training for her colleagues and as one of several Nonviolent Crisis Prevention Intervention Trainers. Her degrees include a Master's Degree in Clinical Child and Family Counseling, a Master of Social Work, and a Doctorate of Ministry in Christian Counseling. She has served as Adjunct Professor for Grand Valley State University and served on the committee for revising the School Social Work Curriculum.

Anjalon Edwards is a MSW graduate of Western Michigan University. She has been practicing school social work for 19 years with Grand Rapids Public Schools. She has presented on topics such as social intelligence and bullying for other community organizations in previous years. Anjalon has served over 12 years as a Field Instructor for Michigan State University and is a 2017 Field Instructor of the Year recipient.

Diane McKinney has 35+ years of social work experience with families, children, and communities; twenty-one of those years have been as a School Social Worker for Grand Rapids Public Schools. She has lectured on social work practices at Professional Development Inservices, Ottawa Area ISD, National Council for Exceptional Children Conference, Michigan Association of School Social Workers Conference as well as several other religious and community-based organizations. Diane McKinney was an Adjunct Professor at GVSU in their School of Social Work teaching Masters and Bachelor level students.

Date: Friday, April 30, 2021

Time: 8:50a.m. - 2:30p.m.

Location: Online, live webinar via Zoom

Presented By: Glenda Bailey Hayden, Ajalon Edwards & Diane McKinney

Cost: $99

Recommended for LBSW and LMSW beginner skill level; for learning objectives and additional program information, please go to our web site.