Identifying Victims of Human Trafficking

This online course will define types and explore possible venues of human trafficking. Warning signs of human trafficking and resources will be identified for reporting suspected victims. This course meets the human trafficking requirement for health licenses in Michigan.

Dr. Paola León developed the online content for this social work continuing education course at Grand Valley State University. Paola is an Assistant Professor of Social Work at GVSU and has been on the faculty since 2012. She received her MSW degree from University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 2001 and her PhD in social work from University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 2016. Her research presentations, publications and interests primarily focus on issues of human rights particularly those that deal with social justice, women's rights and indigenous peoples. Her teaching is primarily in the BSW program in the Macro content area. Some of her service on campus and in the community, include mentoring through the NIARA program, involvement in the Latin American faculty association and co-chairing the Lansing Latino Health Alliance. She has a history of professional practice in the area of violence against women. We thank her for her hard work and time in developing this course.
