Scholarship In Progress

- 1) Forensic projects in collaboration with Human Resource Associates and Gwenden Dueker. Collation of a large data set comprised of psychological evaluations of parents considered for termination of parental rights and court data regarding whether rights are terminated. Consideration of clinical factors predicting termination of parental rights and possible merging of this data set with another data set from Family Futures with clinical evaluation data for children in the foster care system.
- 2) Factors influencing transgenerational disciplinary responding: A three generational study. Data analysis in progress. Manuscript in progress.
- 3) Ongoing work in the area of child abuse. My emphasis is on identifying risk factors (e.g., abuse history, attitudes regarding discipline, emotion regulation, self compassion) for physical abuse perpetration and exploring models to better understand how these risk factors interact to contribute to abuse perpetration. I have also focused on measurement issues: providing better validity data for an existing measure and developing and validating a new measure designed to decrease the impact of socially desirable responding in assessing disciplinary attitudes. Please see the section on publications and presentations for more information regarding the products of this work.

Scholarship History

Consultation with Carter Goble & Associates. (Columbia, South Carolina). State of Iowa Offender Program Evaluation Project. This involved work as a consultant on a contract with the Iowa State Legislature to assess the quality and cost effectiveness of current Iowa Department of Corrections programming for criminal (e.g., Domestic Violence, Sexual, Substance Use, etc.) offenders. The consulting team made recommendations regarding necessary funding, facilities/resources, intervention programming, and outcomes evaluation in the Iowa Dept. of Corrections for years to come. Project results were presented to the Iowa DOC in a two volume report for which I wrote one full chapter and significant portions of several other chapters.
