Meeting with Your Advisor Before Leaving Campus for the Break

If you have narrowed your major down to one or two choices, you could consider adjusting your winter schedule to include a course or two from those majors. If you are still exploring options, there are many courses you can add to your winter schedule to give you insight into specific majors. Remember, you can call 616-331-8585 or go to www.gvsu.edu/clasadvising to schedule an appointment with an Exploratory Study Advisor if you want to discuss your options or need assistance making adjustments to your winter schedule.

Major of the Month History

Do you like to examine the lives of historical figures? Do you analyze the consequences of ideas from the past? Do you like to read historical novels? Then History might be the major for you!

What can you do with a History Major? The short answer to this question is "everything." A major in history supports many career options because it provides students with skills in demand in many fields, including writing, researching, problem solving, critical thinking, and oral communication. These skills are transferrable—they are not field-specific but applicable in many ways to many different kinds of jobs. History is also a great foundation for law school.
