Opportunities for exploring majors and careers...

How Small Are You?

Your BIGNESS may get in the way of your BUSINESS

Thursday, November 1st from 4:30pm-5:45 pm, Seidman Forum (1008A), Grand Rapids campus

Presenter: Billy Lanford

Living in a world that SCREAMS "it's all about you", whether by utilizing social media, having most things uber available at your fingertips, participation trophies, or everyone telling you how special you are. When I see everyone going one way, I am always curious about the opposite way; the road less traveled. We will explore what I call, the difference maker, from those that make an immediate impact on an organization as opposed to those who struggle along wondering why "good things aren't happening for them."

MAJORS FAIR 2018

Wednesday, November 7th from 11am-2pm, 2250 Kirkhof Center, Allendale campus

The Majors Fair offers an opportunity for students to explore major choice options with faculty from various departments across the University. This event provides an informal way for students to engage with faculty members to discuss major choices and future career opportunities. Our alumni are invited to participate which gives students an opportunity to network and learn about the world of work.

So you think you can network?

Wednesday, November 7th from 5pm-7pm, Seidman Forum (1008B), Grand Rapids campus

This is a free event to learn more about networking from the Seidman College of Business.

Major(s) of the Month

Geology, Geochemistry, and Earth Science

Are you curious about the world around you? Do you enjoy being outdoors? Do you like to travel? Do you enjoy learning about science? If you answered yes to any of these questions perhaps you should consider a career in the geosciences. The Department of Geology offers undergraduate B.S. degrees in Geology, Geochemistry, and Earth Science. Our department currently serves about 100 geology & geochemistry majors, 20 earth science majors, and provides classes for about 150 integrated science majors. We also provide general education for about 2000 GVSU students each year. Our graduates go on to outstanding graduate schools and/or find well-paid jobs in environmental science, hydrogeology, the jewelry/minerals industry, engineering geology, academic research, and K-12 teaching.
