

Adult Day Centers

WHAT ARE THEY?

- Centers that offer activities, special events, meals, and provide personal care for adults during the daytime hours.
- This is different than a senior center which does not provide any kind of personal or medical care, only socialization.
- Other skilled services may be offered depending on the center, such as counseling, referral assistance to other community resources, and medical care.
- Services are intended for adults who suffer from a mental or physical impairment who require supervision or assistance with activities of daily living.

BENEFITS TO ATTENDING A DAY CENTER

- Socialization with others in a group setting
- Ability to remain in a home setting longer as the caregiving burden is lessened
- Potential for the primary caregiver to work or do other activities during daytime hours providing a reduction in caregiver stress

THINGS TO REMEMBER

- Ask questions about the facility to ensure it is the best fit for your loved one.
- Some questions include asking about staff training regarding dementia specific issues, hours, fees, transportation to the day center, and types of programs offered.
- It may take a while for your loved one to adjust to a new setting, so don't give up if it doesn't seem successful right away.
- Call your local adult day center for tips or suggestions to get your loved one to try a day center for the first time if they are hesitant.
- Cost varies between day centers. Most settings are private pay on an hourly or daily rate, although financial assistance may be available. Some day centers may also participate with the Medicaid Waiver program.
