

Allison Phillippe's Personal Statement for Faculty Teaching and Learning Center Advisory Committee Nomination

At the intersection of my teaching and scholarship as an Assistant Professor of Elementary Education is my commitment to collaboration. As a teacher educator, I prioritize collaborative talk to center student voices in the classroom and strive to promote shared inquiry alongside the diverse communities with whom we partner. In addition, my research agenda is shaped by the goal of reimagining how educators and researchers can work together to engage in scholarly work that is directly connected to practice. My philosophy strongly aligns with the mission of this committee, particularly its role as a liaison between the campus community and the Faculty Teaching and Learning Center. My experiences cultivating partnerships, designing shared learning experiences, and promoting collective problem-solving mirror the committee's emphasis on collaboration and responsiveness to faculty needs across our campus community. I am confident that I can make a strong contribution to the work of the Faculty Teaching and Learning Center Advisory Committee.
