How is the provosts office encouraging cost efficiencies?
How do you envision FSBC best facilitating these discussions?
    2. Some departments must run low-enrolled courses in order to graduate majors. What strategies might departments employ in an effort to make up for those low-enrolled courses? The following are examples to illustrate the question: can they award a faculty member partial FTE credit for running low-enrolled courses? Can departments offset low-enrolled classes with large section classes? A related question: are we tracking how many low-enrolled courses are taught without compensation?
    3. What are your thoughts on on-line courses?
Is the administration encouraging, discouraging or neutral on the development of GVSU on-line courses?
Is the administration pursuing ways to give credit for students taking on-line courses elsewhere?
