

PAS Program Student Clinical Summative Examination Policy and Procedure

1. Students are required to complete end-of-program clinical summative examinations during the last four months of the PAS program and successfully demonstrate competence as outlined in the PAS 630 syllabus.
2. Students who do not demonstrate competence (as defined in the PAS 630 syllabus) on an end-of-program clinical summative examination will qualify for corrective intervention. Corrective intervention is outlined in the PAS 630 syllabus and may include self-reflection, video review, situational questions, and an opportunity to repeat certain aspects of the clinical summative examination. Successful completion of the clinical summative corrective intervention will result in a score of 80%.
3. Students who do not demonstrate competency on an end-of-program clinical summative examination (as defined in the PAS 630 syllabus) are responsible for contacting the PAS 630 instructors within 72 hours of the original examination grade posting to discuss corrective intervention options and schedule a time for such interventions, if applicable. The date of the corrective intervention will be scheduled at the discretion of the student and PAS 630 instructors.
4. If the student does not demonstrate competency on the initial clinical summative examination or the corrective intervention, the student is required to remediate and undergoes academic review as outlined in the PAS Program Student Policy for Academic Review. This may result in a delayed completion of the program.

Definitions:

Corrective intervention: An intervention that allows students a second opportunity to demonstrate competency on a performance assessment, skills testing, assignment, etc. Interventions may include but are not limited to self-reflection, video review, situational questions, performance/demonstration of skill(s), and assignments. Students do not need to register for a separate course to complete corrective interventions.

Remediation: Students who do not meet the academic requirements in a course or clinical rotation MAY be given one (1) opportunity to do remedial work to meet the academic requirements. Remediation for a course failure will constitute either an independent study course in the subsequent semester or deceleration (see definitions below). Remediation for a clinical rotation failure will involve actual clinical time and/or independent study following the completion of the clinical year. Students are required to register for an independent study or PAS course. Refer to the PAS Program Student Didactic Corrective Intervention and Remediation Policy and Procedure, PAS Program Student Clinical Corrective Intervention and Remediation Policy and Procedure, and the PAS Program Student Policy and Procedure for Clinical Summative Examinations for further details.
