Summary & Key School Highlights

Summary:

Opened as a charter school in 2017, the academy converted from a well-established private school serving 500 students in grades K-8. The school shared space with a private high school, but will now have full access to the entire building.

Highlights:

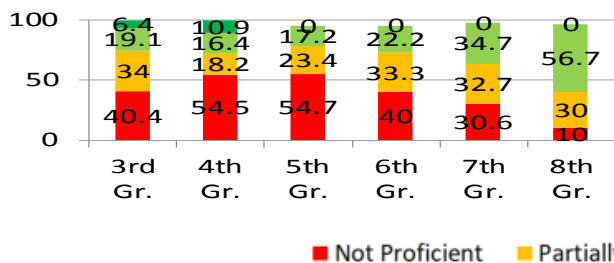

- Strong reenrollment
- Opportunity to expand

CSO Capacity Analysis

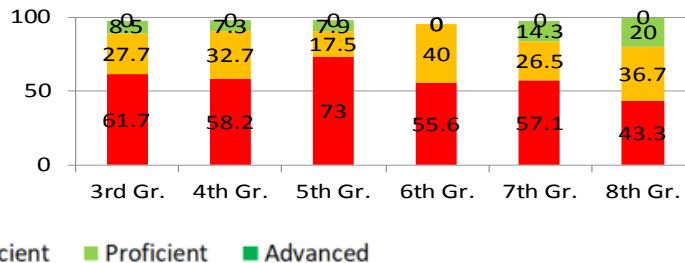

Jefferson-Douglass Academy (“JDA”) continues its transition to a charter school and grows to serve more students. Based off experience with other schools in the Cornerstone network that have undergone a similar transition, the CSO is confident that the transition will be successful. Though academic data is limited, it appears to outperform schools in the area, but underperforms other schools in the Cornerstone network. Also, the school demonstrates organizational and fiscal stability, with the management company provides good support and resources. Based off observations, the CSO believes that the biggest challenge will be enrollment and maintaining culture as the school expands in the 2018 school year.
